'Democracy Is Dead' Declares France's Laval

French Head Made Statement Just Before Hitler Talk

By ROY PORTER
PARIS, Oct. 24—(AP)—(Delayed)—Vice Premier Pierre Laval before his historic interview with Adolf Hitler told me that he believed Democracy in the modern world and in all countries, is dead, and that he was staking France's future on collaboration with Nazi Germany.

Bomb Traps 150
LONDON—(AP)—An undetermined number of persons were reported to be trapped in the basement of a large apartment house which was hit by a Nazi aerial bomb Wednesday night. There were more than 150 persons in the basement of the building when the bomb exploded, but they spread out in groups and only those immediately under the damaged block were trapped.

RAF Bombs Ostend
LONDON—(AP)—The British air ministry said Thursday that RAF's bombers scored many hits overnight on the docks and ship berths in the "invasion" harbor of Ostend, which the Germans repaired following earlier bombing.

Pilots reported that targets were bomber "freely" and that there was a heavy explosion after every second bomb burst.

Bureau Meets Despite Rain

100 Turn Out for Annual Farm Bureau Rally

The Hempstead County Farm Bureau's annual organization meeting and get-together was held at the Fruit & Truck Branch Experiment Station Thursday despite a downpour of rain during the morning which forced the program to be held indoors in the station's buildings.

Originally scheduled to be held on the recreation grounds from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m., the noon luncheon and speaking program were held in the assembly hall of the main group of station buildings.

A substantial increase in sugar production was general in 1939.

Draftee Will Be Given 5 Days to Wind Up Affairs

First of Series About New American Army

One of a series taking a draftee into Uncle Sam's new army.

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — John Q. Citizen and all his relatives are wondering these days just what happens to him and his likes if they are drafted for one year's training in the United States Army, thus becoming citizen soldiers fit to defend their country if need arise.

Assume that John's number is among the first to be called up in his neighborhood as a result of the big lottery at Washington Oct. 29 and that he fills out and swears to his questionnaire which is duly sent back to the local draft board.

John is single, about 25, has no dependents and is not working in a job vital to the rearmament of the country.

So he is summoned to appear before the draft board and is examined by the medical adviser. He is found physically fit.

He is given five days in which to wind up his personal and business affairs and then reports back to the board, along with other men who are drafted.

Mike Murphy Dies of Auto Injuries Here

Local Gas Company Manager Succumbs in Hospital Thursday

Mike Murphy, 45, local manager of the Louisiana-Nevada Transit company, died in Julia Chester Hospital about 8:20 Thursday morning of injuries received last Tuesday in a head-on auto crash with a car towing another about two miles east of Fulton.

O. R. Hanbey, driver of the tow-car was not injured. Murphy suffered severe hip and chest injuries, one of his lungs being punctured.

Mr. Murphy was well known throughout the Southwest, and although a resident of Hope for only a short time he was active in civic affairs and had made many friends here.

His body will be taken overland to Dallas, Texas, for burial. Funeral services were to be held at the McKinney-Campbell Funeral Home in Dallas.

Surviving are his widow, two daughters, Patricia and Catherine, and one son, Michael, Jr.

Library Backs Amendment 33

Charles Reynerson Chairman, Issues Statement

Charles Reynerson, chairman of the Hempstead county and member of the Hope Library boards, has issued the following statement urging our citizens to vote in favor of Amendment No. 33 on November 5.

Amendment No. 33 is submitted to the people as a result of the efforts of library minded citizens in a number of the cities of Arkansas, where the financing of the City Library is being managed with difficulty.

While we are not in need of its provisions in Hope, due to the liberality of the City Council in aiding the library, the past five years, the provisions of Amendment No. 33 are such that it should appeal to the fairness of every voter.

First, Amendment No. 33 does not levy a tax at all. It merely authorizes citizens in cities of 5000 population or above (and no others) to impose on themselves a general property tax of one mill, or less, for the support of city libraries. It requires that 100 citizens or more sign a petition and file it asking that a proposal be submitted at a general election, before any proposal can be submitted. This must then be voted on at a general election, and a majority must vote in favor.

Invaded Greece Is Poor in All Things Except Military Position

Axis Wants Greece for Mediterranean Drive

By NEA Service
The glory that was Greece has faded to the point where she can no longer be considered in the same class with the new Roman Empire. Her fighting forces are small and poorly equipped.

Greece's army, navy and air force are separate units. Peace strength of the army is about 33,000 men; maximum war strength about 120,000. Military service is compulsory for men between the ages of 21 and 50.

When a mysterious submarine sank the Greek cruiser Helle a few months ago, Greece lost a sizable part of its first line navy. She has left one old cruiser, 12 destroyers, six submarines and several torpedo boats and other smaller craft, all old.

Her air force numbers only about 100 planes, including flying boats. Greece is about the size of New York state, has a smaller population—about 7,200,000.

The country's value to the Axis powers lies not in its resources or its manufactured products, but in its strategic position.

It occupies the southern peninsula of the Balkan peninsula, lying between the Ionian and Aegean Seas. It is a mountainous area, with a great many gulfs and bays along its shores. The nearby seas are dotted with small islands.

Greece proper is chiefly agricultural—principal products being wheat, rye, barley, oats, corn, tobacco, olives, lemons, oranges, mandarins, apples, pears, figs and nuts. Chief minerals are iron, zinc, lignite and salt.

Greece reached its greatest glory in the fifth century B. C.; became

Recapture Hill Held by Italy Near Ioannina

Greece Informs Turkey That She Can Resist Italy Alone

ATHENS—(P)—Greek troops were reported Thursday to have counter-attacked the north besieged town of Ioannina and sources regarded as reliable said they stormed and recaptured a hill.

The Greeks, rushing the hill under heavy fire, were said to have seized large quantities of abandoned arms and equipment from the Italian invaders.

The Ioannina sector, on the western frontier with Albania, was still the scene of the heaviest fighting of this 4-day-old war, but there has been little change in the line. Along the rest of the front the Greeks said the action was limited to sporadic fighting and skirmishes between advanced units of the two armies.

Both Italians and Greeks are bombing the line of communication behind the front.

Turkey Not Needed

ANKARA—(P)—Greece informed the Turkish government that she can resist Italian pressure alone, semi-official sources in Ankara asserted Thursday.

The sources declared that Turkey would enter the war only "in case of a Bulgarian attack on Greece" or if Turkey's national interests were endangered.

However, Turkey cannot remain disinterested in developments of the eastern Mediterranean, they said, and has informed the Athens government that she will give Greece every help possible, even if she does not enter the war.

Italians Advance

ROME—(P)—Italian troops fighting through the mud and rain pushed forward to the Kalamas river in Greece, five miles from the Albanian frontier, the high command reported Thursday.

At the same time Italian warplanes, despite adverse flying conditions, were reported to have bombed loaded troopships at the port of Patras as well as the Lapanto naval base on the Gulf of Corinth, the barracks at Metzevo pass in western Greece and highway junctions in the Kalamas valley.

Several enemy planes were shot down during these bombing operations from which only one Italian plane failed to return, the communiqué said.

Malco to Aid Drafted Men

To Retain Jobs, Insurance for Employees

M. S. McCord, secretary of Malco Theaters, informed Rummel Young, manager of the Saenger and Rialto theaters Thursday that all employees of the Malco company called out for compulsory military training will retain his status with the company, and upon his return would be reinstated to his position.

It will also be Malco's policy during the year any employee is in service for the National Defense Program that his life insurance will remain in full force and effect and all premiums for said insurance will be paid for by the company without any cost to the employees serving his year in the defense program.

Housing Units Are Approved

$45,762,500 to Be Spent on Defense Dwellings

WASHINGTON—(P)—Charles Palmer, defense housing coordinator, announced Thursday that President Roosevelt approved "immediate construction of housing projects in 63 vital defense areas" with $45,762,500 as defense funds.

This money, Palmer said, would provide 13,315 family dwelling units scattered throughout the United States.

Far East Has 2 Focal Points

Singapore and Hongkong Are Points of Worry

By JAMES BASSETT
AP Feature Service

While men on the eastern fringe of the continent of Asia have two major worries, both of which are islands. One is Singapore; the other, Hongkong.

They might as well concentrate on Singapore, a bit of land not much larger than Manhattan, but for Occidentals vastly more important strategically in 1940.

Hongkong is a lost cause. Britons know it, but they won't admit it. Flying into Singapore not long ago, I could see the captured French liner Le France at anchor. In drydock was another, mightier passenger vessel whose name must remain secret. Grey-painted, it is now perhaps carrying another cargo of Australian soldiers to fight His Majesty's battle in the Middle East.

Of the 800,000 persons who jam-pack this island, only 8,000 are British. Seventy per cent are South Chinese. The remainder are Malays, Indians and a few (2,000) Japanese. Singapore's land forces number only 12,000 men, of which 3,000 are English.

But Singapore has artillery—light outfits mobile as quicksilver, six-to-eight-inch howitzers batteries of heavy guns that an invading fleet would pass, and in places the world's largest, long-range fixed pieces, 18-inchers.

Naval Force Gone

When you think of Singapore you think of NAVY, but today that is little more than wishful thinking. In Australia, an admiral remarked to me rather wistfully: "The American fleet would fit nicely in Singapore." It would. Practically nothing stands there now. A skeleton gunboat force, a couple of destroyers and one light cruiser in the huge floating dry-dock comprise the existing force.

The floating strength that made Singapore a No. 1 offensive naval station has been transferred to the scene of war in the Mediterranean. Each night, therefore, wise army and navy heads offer thanks for the air force.

I saw evidences of at least 200-300 fighting planes and bombers at Singapore, and you hear rumors that a strong detachment of Hurricane pursuit planes (perhaps 300) has been crunched in hill-side hangars.

Singapore hasn't been wasting its time. Its coastline bristles with barbed wire. Every quarter-mile along its palm-studded beaches squats a concrete pillbox. Tank traps gape along its shore. Enough food is stored to last through a year's siege.

The little colony of Hongkong is in a desperate predicament. Almost useless to Britain, it still would be a nasty weapon should it fall into the hands of an enemy.

Seven miles long, it has a normal population of 1,500,000 which is now swelled by 1,000,000 hungry Chinese war refugees.

Britain holds part of the mainland, but 20 miles northwest is the Japanese-controlled border and 60 miles beyond is Canton, teeming with Japanese planes and mechanized troops. Fearing Japanese attack, Hongkong is on a 24-hour "alert" status. Every white man under 55 drills one

U. S. Orders More Planes

12,000 Planes to Cost War Department 2 Billion

WASHINGTON —(AP)—The war department was reported Thursday to have planned the production of 12,000 additional bombing planes largely with the aid of the automobile industry.

The program, to cost possibly two billion dollars, was described as separate from the 12,000 warplane order which President Roosevelt said Wednesday night that Great Britain proposed to place with this country.

"My Name Is Million" Is Placed On Library Shelves

The author of this dynamic book is an Englishwoman whose name is familiar to all Americans but must, for the present, be concealed. Her husband is a Pole and for two years they lived in the Polish Carpathians on the Slovakian frontier; however at the moment of the invasion they were in Warsaw. That is where the story starts.

The author's experiences in her attempt at flight make as exciting reading as any spy or detective yarn. She was pursued and captured before finally reaching the Lithuanian border, and thence passage to England. On her way she was befriended by the peasants of the districts she passed through, and she tells of their reactions to invasion and of their uprising in defense of their homeland. This is a vivid and dramatic book, unusual in that it is a first-hand report from the pen of a professional writer. So many adventures happened to persons, who have, perhaps, never written before. Their stories, though intrinsically thrilling, can never compare with one such as this, told by a woman expert at conveying the terror, excitement, and emotional strain of those desperate days.

Here is a novelist and past master of the use of words, describing scenes which she has felt and experienced she has known.

NEW YORK JUNGLE

BY WRAY WADE SEVERN

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, Sidney learns more of Adam's unusual actions from Togi. In his anger, Langdon had locked himself in the jungle. Togi watched him take a gun from the trunk, aim it. Later, Sidney tells a man through the woods, watches him climb a tree. The man comes sliding down, drops to the ground.

THE MAN IN THE TREE

CHAPTER XXI

THE moonlight was bright. Breathlessly, Braitwood watched the man drop from the lower branches of the oak. There was no mistaking that dapper figure—Henry Barkes, Adam Langdon's chauffeur!

Breathing heavily, Barkes stood in the small clearing, brushed leaves and bits of bark from his clothes. Next, he walked around his tree, glancing up to make sure his secret was invisible from below. Apparently assured that it was safe, he re-entered the trail.

When Barkes' footsteps had faded into silence, Sidney left his own hiding place, tagged the oak with his pocket knife and a leaf from his notebook, and followed the chauffeur.

Reaching the edge of the thicket, he sighted Barkes again. The man moved like a third shadow, head sunk in collar, dejected arms lost in the pockets of his coat. At the edge of the orchard, he slackened his pace still more, peered into the garden, lighted a cigarette and strolled nonchalantly toward a bench.

Preferring that Barkes should believe himself safe, Sidney moved cautiously forward and waited for a few minutes behind a lilac bush. He wanted to keep Barkes in sight and at the same time get in touch with Plowman's man so he could send him for the bundle.

As he stood there, trying to figure how to manage both, the trooper emerged from the thicket with Barkes' bundle under his arm.

WITH the quietness of a cat the officer approached Sidney, indicated he was to keep guard on the chauffeur, then moved noiselessly toward the back door.

Taking the hint, Sidney strolled toward the bench where Barkes sat.

"Good evening, Barkes," he said, sinking down beside the man.

"Good evening, Mr. Braitwood," "I'm sorry I told you that Togi had shot Mr. Langdon," he said after a moment of depressed silence.

"I've changed my mind. You'll think me a nut when I tell you why."

"Perhaps not," Sidney smiled. "Togi could have done the murder exactly as I reasoned," Barkes said. "But now I've concluded such an act would be out of character for him."

"I agree there. But what changed your opinion?"

"A small act of kindness on his part. Oh, not to me. He hates me. But to a poor little mutt of a dog. A bound. Its bones stuck out like ridges. It couldn't have smelt meat for days."

"A dog?" Sidney's interest quickened.

"Togi made a lot of that poor mutt. He fed it, even though Mr. Langdon had never allowed a dog on the place."

SILENCE again. More stars came out until the heavens had jeweled the dark leavings of the moon. But the beauty of the night instilled no peace in Henry Barkes, so far as Sidney could read. Dejection emanated from him.

Yet try as he would, Braitwood could not place the chauffeur with the murder gun in his hand. Why hadn't the poor devil come out into the open about his mysterious bundle? What had it contained?

The headlights of a police car pointed into the driveway and Plowman stepped out. The trooper on guard met him and after a few words of whispered conversation they crossed to Sidney and the chauffeur.

Barkes rose. "You want to talk with Mr. Braitwood, Captain?" he said courteously.

"Not so fast, Barkes," Plowman detained him. "We want you to go with us to headquarters tonight."

"I've told you everything I know," Barkes argued desperately, as the trooper's fingers clamped his arm. "I have to be here. I'll lose my job. Can they make me go, Mr. Braitwood?"

"I'm afraid they can, Barkes," the lawyer advised. "Better not talk too much."

"You'll talk plenty," Plowman broke in. "There are some things you may be able to explain, Barkes. Now about that package you hid in the tree . . ."

"That was my dog, just a little Pom. I've had him for years," Barkes stammered. "I had him with me until Mr. Langdon came home. Even Togi didn't know it. I took him to the inn, to the village. Yesterday he came back. I locked him in my rooms over the garage and took him to town with me. I thought a lot of that dog."

He paused, swallowed, then hurried on. "I'd driven as far as the first turn when I remembered

Mr. Langdon had told me to take the electric percolator in to be repaired. It was in the storeroom."

"I had taken off my rubbers, but the dog's feet were wet. I had to put him down while I unlocked the door . . ."

"What became of the dog?" Plowman demanded.

"I took him in to town, but the inkeeper wouldn't let me leave him. Said he disturbed the guests, barking. So I had to bring him back. I tied him behind the garage, but he got away. He's afraid in storms."

"He came back, though, jumped in the drawing room window and cuddled up beside me on the divan. I knew you had found his paw prints and I was afraid I'd be accused of the—of the shooting. I figured if I could get him out of the house, I'd tie him up again, then take him to some farmer to keep for a while."

"There was a trooper at the front door and Murphy in the kitchen. I thought maybe I could get out unobserved, through one of the jungle windows. But there was a chance of the dog barking, especially at the troopers. Then I remembered seeing some chloroform in the third floor bathroom."

"I SLIPPED upstairs, gave the Pom a whiff of chloroform. Mr. Braitwood almost caught me in the billiard room, but I managed to get down the fire escape and into Mr. Langdon's room. You see, I knew about that passage next the flue. Old houses interest me and I'd heard a lot of stories about this one. I just happened to discover it."

"Go on. So you picked up Adam Langdon's dressing gown and a pair of socks, and climbed down to the jungle," Plowman prompted.

The chauffeur nodded. "When I reached the Jungle I found the dog had stopped breathing. I'd given him too much. I reached out through a window, stuffed the body behind some vines, hid the dressing gown and socks, and . . . and . . ."

"Sounds like he's telling the truth to me," Sidney said.

"Possibly," Captain Plowman conceded. "But one thing more, Barkes. Mr. Langdon had you cash a check for $500 for him yesterday. You wouldn't know what happened to that money now, would you?"

"And you wouldn't know that the man in the green sedan was Brabant, the man you said would support your alibi? You wouldn't know anything about that, would you, Barkes?"

Now Bellboys Go to School

HEIDELBERG, Germany — (AP) This citadel of higher learning now offers instruction in hotel management and service.

Not a part of the university, the "high school of the hotels" is conducted at a world-famed hotel here. Business goes on as usual except that it is handled by young girls, who do everything from darning the guests' socks to managing the hostelry. They receive the guest, escort him to his room, shine his shoes, take care of his laundry, tidy the room, serve the meal, supervise the kitchen, keep the books and handle the money.

After a year's service the student hotel-worker receives a certificate as a qualified hotel and restaurant employee.

Through Nazi Eyes—A Stuka Attack

Hans Adolph is a German artist. He is also a Nazi air force flier who participated in a recent Stuka dive bomber attack on British shipping in the English Channel. Hans was kept pretty busy during the action, but this, according to Nazi censor's caption, is the way he remembered it, and sketched it on his return from the fight. Sketch artists, like reporters and photographers, are required to be regularly uniformed members of the German armed forces to carry out their assignments.

Their Dander Is Up

For over forty days and forty nights the deluge of German bombs has rained on England. But apparently instead of demoralizing Britons it has made them fighting mad, thirsting for revenge. Hence the increasingly insistent demands, typified by this London poster, that the R. A. F. bomb Berlin.

Newest addition to Uncle Sam's rapidly growing merchant fleet is the S. S. President Jackson. First of seven new passenger and cargo vessels being built by the American President Lines, it is pictured in drydock at Newport News, Va., almost ready for her trial run on October 15th.

Toying With National Defense

News of America's national defense program must have reached the North Pole workshops of Santa Claus, for the martial motif was strong among the toys shown at the recent annual toy manufacturers' exhibit in New York. # Scouts Assume Responsibility

Hope School Head Endorses Local Scouting

By BERYL JENNY

The fundamental principles of the Boy Scouts of America are character, courtesy, citizenship. Each is synonymous to the other. Boys who have been trained in Scout Law assume responsibility of individual action a great deal more seriously than those boys who have never had the privilege of being a member of a Scout Troop.

Our community has had a few Eagle Scouts in the past few years. The achievement of reaching the degree of Eagle Scout is based upon how well the scout has done each round of training that leads to the final accomplishment. As Scouts come to each one of these degrees and passes with a serious sense of responsibility of what it means to him as a citizen, you are going to find that he has a knowledge of his responsibilities as a citizen of the community.

In most instances, boys of the public schools who are members of the Scout Troops reflect their training in their class work and their citizenship grades. It is very seldom that a Scout is found who does not carry out to the better the Scout Law that is required of him, as well as his Scout Oath. This organization has for its cardinal principles the various characteristics that will make him at all times honorable, upright and trustworthy.

This is an organization that every community should bend every effort to see that its program is carried out and that leaders with conviction of their duties are secured. The community with an alert, wide-awake Boy Scout Council is one that is reflected in the lives of the citizens of the community.

Scouting Here Is Endorsed

Baptist Minister Writes on Scout Achievements.

By REV. W. R. HAMILTON

It is my belief that scouting affords an opportunity for boys to develop their physical and mental powers, an opportunity to study and appreciate nature, and an opportunity to learn the give-and-take principle of human relationships. When it is under genuine Christian leadership scouting affords a vehicle for the building of wholesome ideals and Christian characters.

Boy Scouts of America affords the boys of Hempstead County opportunity to become a part of a great national movement. Thus, does this organization promote a feeling of national unity and solidarity. The Scout requirements.

favor of it to be effective.

Second, the tax could not be levied outside the city voting it.

Third, under no circumstances could it be ever applicable to any part of our county except the city of Hope. Therefore, our rural people are certainly justified in voting in favor of giving the city people the right to tax themselves to finance a library should they so desire.

Fourth, few persons would quarrel with the object of establishing and maintaining public libraries for they together with our schools and churches stand as the cornerstones that tend to guarantee the existence of democracy.

Fifth, Amendment 33 provides that any city voting a tax upon itself under this amendment can cooperate in its services with county public libraries without any tax being levied on the rural people at all for this purpose.

Supreme Court Wire Tapped?

Charge Is Laid Before Subcommittee of Senate

NEW YORK —(AP)—A senate subcommittee said Wednesday an inquiry would be started in Washington Friday to determine whether telephone wires of United States Supreme Court justices had been tapped during an important case.

Coincident with this announcement, the committee lawyer, William Power Maloney, declared federal investigators had uncovered "startling facts" concerning the unlawful practice in New York city and involving "high public officials."

"Innumerable circumstances have been discovered," Maloney said, "where telephone wires of public officials and private individuals have been tapped and the right to privacy of these persons invaded at the instance of men holding high public office for no discernible purpose other than that of purely personal gain."

Maloney said the alleged Washington wire-tapping occurred in October, 1938, at the time the Tennessee Valley Authority case was before the high court.

Maloney said the "connecting link has been forged in an unbreakable chain of evidence which will link the activities of disreputable private investigators and wire-tappers to those of men high in public and private life by whom they were employed."

"The revelation of this snooping and eavesdropping, even though thinly disguised in some cases as incidental to the investigation of alleged violation of law, will shock those who in good conscience are opposed to thoroughly un-American practices."

Canadians Go to U. S. Planes

Will Standardize on U. S. Equipment Lines

NEW YORK —(AP)—A decision by the Canadian government to concentrate all dominion air-craft production on planes of American design, which might have far-reaching effects on defense of the Western Hemisphere, was reported in America aviation circles this week.

The plan, broached to at least two United States airplane plants, envisages gradual abandonment by Canadian manufacturers of British-design machines.

United States machine tools and production methods are being used as much as possible in Canadian aircraft factories, work in British designs, it is said.

The Canadian move is important to United States rearmament and hemisphere defense because the Dominion factories will become, in effect, extensions of older and larger plants on this side of the border with a standardized output. Moreover, under the close collaboration existing between Washington and Ottawa, interchangeability of aircraft parts would work to the advantage of both countries.

Prescott Host to Fox Hunters

Homer Adkins to Speak at Annual State Meet

PRESCOTT — Only four days remain before distinguished fox hunters from several states will arrive in Prescott to join the Arkansas fox hunters in what is expected to be one of the biggest hunts of all times at Lackland Springs, about 10 miles east of here.

The affair is staged annually by the Arkansas State Fox Hunters, Inc., and at least 300 hunters with 500 hounds will attend this year's meet opening Monday, November 4 and continuing through Thursday, November 7.

The large and well-planned program will be opened at 6 o'clock Monday afternoon with Rev. Homer Gentry, of Boston, President of the Nevada County Association, presiding. The welcome address will be delivered by H. H. McKenzie and speaker of the evening will be Governor-elect Homer M. Adkins. Climaxing the program of the first night will be the bench show to be held at 7:30 o'clock to be judged by E. I. Newblock of Tulsa, Okla.

The field trails will be the main attractions on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The casts for derby and all-age stakes will be made at daylight each morning. The award of trophies will be made at 2:00 o'clock on the afternoon of the final day.

The Prescott Band is scheduled to be on hand each afternoon to render musical programs.

A Nevada county committee will meet Thursday, October 31, at Lackland to make the final preparations for the occasion. Dog kennels will be built, corals for the horses and a speaker's platform will be erected. A restaurant will be set up and will be in charge of Sid Gee. A portable electric light plant will be put into operation, and other preparations made to give the hunters a great hunt.

The very rules and regulations Mr. Collins is talking about HAVE BEEN CHANGED TO MEET SPECIAL CONDITIONS IN CERTAIN STATES — AND THEY MUST AND WILL BE CHANGED AGAIN.

Here is my proof:

Mr. Collins writes in his letter to The Star:

"Your reference to the fact that Texas has instituted merit-rating does not take into consideration the fact that they began the payment of benefits down there a year before we did. Consequently, they have already achieved the required benefit experience."

Our trouble in Arkansas arises out of the fact that federal Social Security legislation required employers to begin payment of unemployment tax on payrolls for the year 1936, and called upon the state governments to set up unemployment bureaus to administer this tax.

Arkansas employers paid tax for 1936, just as employers in every other state in America did—but the Arkansas legislature failed to set up a state bureau in time to receive the tax directly. The Star and other employers, therefore, paid their tax for 1936 direct to the federal government.

BUT ARKANSAS WAS ONLY ONE OF FIVE STATES IN THE SAME PREDICAMENT. CONGRESS RECOGNIZED THIS PREDICAMENT — AND BY SPECIAL ENACTMENT RETURNED THE CUSTOMARY 90 PER CENT OF THIS 1936 TAX TO THE FIVE STATE GOVERNMENTS WHICH WERE LATE IN SETTING UP THEIR UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION BUREAUS.

Certainly our state was in conflict with federal Social Security rules and regulations in the matter of handling this 1936 unemployment fund—but the matter was remedied between state and federal agencies. A matter of equity always has to be remedied—regardless what the rules and regulations are.

AND TODAY THE SAME FIVE STATES — ARKANSAS INCLUDED — ARE IN THE SAME POSITION WITH REGARD TO MERIT-RATING AS THEY WERE BACK YONDER WITH REGARD TO HANDLING THE 1936 TAX PAYMENT.

"The plain facts are that for the five-year period ending December 31, 1940, all employers in America will have paid a total of 12 per cent payroll tax for unemployment purposes—but while most of the states, like Texas, will reduce the present flat 3 per cent tax for employers with good records, be-

Don't Be a Sponge;
They're All Wet

One of the best warnings about Fifth Column activities to appear lately is in a little booklet issued by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. These Americans, all of whom have known war at first hand, have compiled a little treatise setting forth clearly and circumstantially just how various Nazi, Fascist, Communist and native fascist organizations work, and through whom.

Without hysteria, the writers warn all Americans to be on the alert for such activities, native and imported, and if they seem really subversive to report them to proper authority for investigation. Nothing is gained, and much lost by amateur vigilante attempts to remedy these situations.
Injustice is more likely to result than justice.

But there is one thing all of us can do. That is to stop and think when people babble into our ears. The keynote of all Fifth Column activity is to create confusion in the minds of the people. As a farmer's first step is to plow and harrow his field before he plants his crop, so the Fifth Columnist first plows and harrows the mind of his victim, making it ready for his seeds of discontent.

"They begin, usually," cautions the VFW pamphlet, "by attacking the Jews, whom they regard as the weakest minority in the land. . . . The objective, as always, is to divide the population by creating hatred, an-timony and prejudice. Once the cracks in national unity begin to appear, the offensive doubles its forces and strikes next at the Catholics. Soon the labor unions feel the brunt of the Fifth Column attack. Then comes the system of private enterprise. And finally, the forms and traditions of democratic government itself are assailed."

"That is a fair outline of the approach.
This does not mean that anyone who speaks to you in such vein is necessarily a Fifth Columnist. But it does mean that thoughtful talk along such lines serves the same purpose.

"The remedy? Use your head. To all talk appealing to prejudice and fear, to hatred and despair, ask yourself the sober question, 'Is there any sense to this?' If there isn't, tell your self so with electric force—and answer back.

"Don't be a sponge, absorbing everything fed to it. Think. A sponge can absorb a great amount of slop, but after it has done so, it's all wet.

The Lincoln books continue to roll from the presses and the current season already produces two.

The first and certainly one of the most intriguing pieces of Lincolniana to turn up in a long time is "My Dear Lady," by Marjorie Barstow
Greenbie (Whitlouse). House: $2.75.
This is the story of Anna Ella Carroll, "the great, unrecognized member of Lincoln's cabinet." The second title is by Otto Eisenschiml, "In the Shadow of Lincoln's Death" (Wilfred Funk & Co., Inc.) is a further exposition which Eisenschiml so creditably explored in "Why Was Lincoln Murdered?"

Mrs. Greenbie's story, though long familiar to the historians, is probably the least known in American history.
It is at any rate the story of a most remarkable young woman, member of a distinguished Maryland family, who became one of Lincoln's closest confidential advisers.

Anna Carroll performed manifold services. She wrote a series of pamphlets distributed by the war and state departments, "white papers" today.
She is said to have won Maryland's adherence to the Union (she was daughter of the governor) and finally, and most vital, she planned a great deal of the successful Union military strategy. Says Mrs. Greenbie: her observations led directly to the fall of Fort Donelson and Henry and her suggested line of attack was used at Vicksburg.

All this Mrs. Greenbie tells with superb style and excellent documentation, thus rescuing from long anonymity a career, stifled after Lincoln's death by official jealousy. You hope when you lay the book down finally that Mrs. Greenbie makes other
"rescues" in American history.

Mr. Eisenschiml, keen Lincoln student, likewise turns out a provocative book but it appears to fall short of the first in the sensational nature of its revelations. He marshals the evidence, for instance, on the question whether Booth was killed or escaped but produces no final conclusion. His review of the whole bizarre episode, however, is extremely interesting and well worth reading.

They have worked all summer, thru

Time to Train Is 'Teen' Age

Minister's Pre- pare for Boy Scout Drive

By REV. JOHN KEITH GREGORY

Because God gave him a keen mind with which to think, and the driving initiative for disinterestedness with the status quo for stimulation, it is a matter of this earth on which we live. And one of his earliest discoveries definitely contributing to human domination amongst God's creations, the product of this ability, is that principle of education which is the very foundation of the Boy Scout Movement.

I have reference, of course, to the well-established proposition that the early "teens" are the best years of one's life for fixing, through habit and training, the permanency of those ideals the child learns from the parent during the years of almost complete dependence. With the beginning of the "teen" years, and this is true particularly of boys, the dependent intimacy between parent and child gradually changes to a relationship of independence and aloofness, on the latter's part—resulting in group activity which definitely excludes the parent. The real problem of this age of a boy's life, then, is how to guide—direct, each activity into the proper channels of thought and behavior. To meet this problem is the whole program of Scouting! It is the objective of the Boy Scout Movement to instill within the rapidly forming life-habits and ideology of the boy the American Way of Life!

Only a brief examination of the ideals boys learn and practice in Scouting is needful for one to realize the tremendous value of this work. The Scout Oath puts the whole in a nutshell: "On My Honor, I Will Do My Best: 1. To do my duty to God and my country, and obey the Scout Law; 2. To help other people at all times; and 3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight."

When a boy learns and practices the Scout Law, which he promises, on oath, to obey, his behaviour and thinking is being patterned during these important, early "teen" years along such lines as trustworthiness, loyalty, helpfulness, courage, cleanliness and true reverence.

Certainly there are few other programs, if any, more conducive of God-fearing men and good citizens in the years to come! Scouting is a long-ranged program; Scouting is looking to the future!

State's Draft May Be Later

None Likely to Be Called Until January 3

LITTLE ROCK — It is possible none of Arkansas's 228,000 men of draft age will be called for selective service, military training before January 3, 1941, Gen. Dan B. Byrd, state selective service director, said Tuesday night.

"Very few" if any Arkansians whose serial numbers were identified with order numbers in Tuesday's lottery will be taken in November and December drafts because of the state's excellent enlistment record, he explained. The Seventh Corps Area, of which Arkansas is a part, has a draft quota, but the state probably will off-set the first Arkansas quotas.

Larger quotas will be assigned for January 3, January 15 and February 16, 1941. The number of men summoned from Arkansas on these dates will be "a good many," General Byrd said. He previously had estimated two-thirds of the state's registrants will be placed on deferred lists after classifications are determined.

A man placed in Class 1-B, capable of limited military service, possibly could be called to duty before a registrant in Class 1-A, fully capable of immediate military service, the state director said. The former's occupation or vocational training might subject him to the earlier call.

Arkansas will lose approximately 5,000 from a Registration Day total of 235,000 draft eligibles through the transfer of cards of out-of-state registrants to their home files, Maj. Pat Harris, Selective Service publicity director, said. More than 1,000 out-of-state men registered in Mississippi county. Card transfers to home boards increased western Arkansas counties were losing. Migrant cotton pickers and river workers accounted for the large number of out-of-state men in eastern Arkansas October 16, registration date.

Arkansas's largest draft serial number was 4,740, the highest figure in Sebastian county's Draft Board A.

U. S. Finds New Sugar Bowl

Sorghum Cane Is Ready for a New Role

MERIDIAN, Miss. — Sorghum cane, a humble crop which has supplied a low-cost household "sweetener" in the form of molasses, is ready for a new role.

U. S. department of agriculture scientists assert that they now have a process whereby granulated sugar can be made from the economical and easy-to-plant crop.

But American growers of sugar cane and sugar beets are assured by Dr. Emil K. Ventre and S. Byall, department of agriculture technicians who have brought the process to its present stage of development, that their method is not intended to eclipse America's heretofore favorite source of sugar.

Ventre, who supervised the experiments at the department's field station near here, says the use of sorghum cane as a source of sugar will make more work for the sugar mills of this country and should supplant none of the present domestic sources of supply.

Says he: "Today this country imports 4,000,000 tons of sugar annually and produces only 2,000,000 tons. It's obvious that we could use more domestic producers."

Until three years ago experimentars had given little consideration to sorghum as a possible source, although Dr. Harvey Washington Wiley, pioneer in the movement to regulate the purity of foods and drugs, had spent 10 years and several million dollars on research.

He gave up his work on sorghum in 1891 when he found that, in spite of all his efforts, the results were always the same. His sorghum juices jelled into a brown, viscous liquid, never crystallized into sugar.

Three years ago in the government laboratories at Sturkville, Miss., Ventre and Byall began a study of the sugar content of various sorghum canes.

"To get the sugar, we had to re-

We Know Editors Who'd Do Worse

McCOMB, Miss. —(P)— It's said the newspaper business is a tough game for a woman—that a woman's place is in the home.

But Editor Elizabeth Millard of the Pike county Herald, who's gone unscathed from her journalistic experiences, reported that as a result of her duties in the kitchen since she married recently she:

Cut one finger peeling potatoes; scraped another digit grating nutmeg; scalded the other hand in dishwater; bruised her hip falling down the kitchen steps.

In a Hurry? Ride a Balloon

LA JUNTA, Colo. —(P)— The La Junta high school chemistry class decided to send up a toy balloon, inflated with natural gas, to see how far it would float.

Several days later they received a letter from Howard Mantz of enemy's advances in the country's Dawn, Mo., who had found the balloon near his home the day after it was sent from La Junta.

The class figured the balloon made a flight of 575 miles in 15 hours or less and that its speed average at least 40 miles per hour.

Cornell Has Strong Team

Most Powerful Squad Prefers Passing Game

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

ITHACA — Cornell probably has the most powerful college football team in the nation, but wisely chooses the easier and quicker passing game.

Carl G. Snavely has developed numerous passing combinations to such a degree of efficiency that Big Red signal callers avoid the wear and tear entailed by scoring the hard way... on the ground.

The result has been a modicum of injuries.

Cornell's juggernaut, unbeaten and undefeated since 1938, further shows that devastating passing attack can be perfected only when a squad has a rushing game to match.

Running plays are used just often enough to keep defenders from spreading out and concentrating on pass defense.

Going into the Ohio State battle, the men had participated in Cornell's scoring... 112 points against Colgate, Army and Syracuse.

Three players carried the ball from scrimmage.

Seven passed and 12 received.

Practically all the passers have been on the receiving end.

Passed From End Zone in Game With Syracuse

So sure are the Cornell athletes of their ability to execute daring maneuvers that Jack Bohrmann, the kicker, passed from the end zone out of the left flat to Walt School in the Syracuse engagement and School ran 25 yards before he was brought down.

Of 17 touchdowns made by Cornell prior to the Ohio State battle, 11 were tallied with aerials—four of the five made against Colgate, three of the seven rolled up against Army, and four of the five against Syracuse.

Hal McCullough, triple threat left halfback, completed eight of nine passes attempted against Syracuse for 126 yards and two touchdowns.

That brought his record for three games to 18 completions in 24 tries for a total of 330 yards and four touchdowns.

Triple Threat McCullough Has a Capable Understudy

Scholl, his understudy, completed five of seven against Syracuse for 124 yards and two touchdowns. That gave him a three-game total of 12

Know Yourself and Your Color

Mrs. Bowser Sells Your Color Personality

By MARGARET KERNODLE
AP Feature Service Writer

NEW YORK — There's a little red-haired woman in Manhattan who has made a big business out of prescribing colors for personality.

You can buy gray rugs and lamps, match your draperies and upholstery, paint your walls, select your clothes and even your cosmetics by her 20th century color cards.

She is Mrs. Bernice Bowser and you can go to her beautiful modern office for a CP rating.

Her idea isn't brand new. It sounds so obvious you can hardly believe it ever was a money-making scheme much less understand exactly how it got involved in so many things you are likely to be buying.

System Used by Others

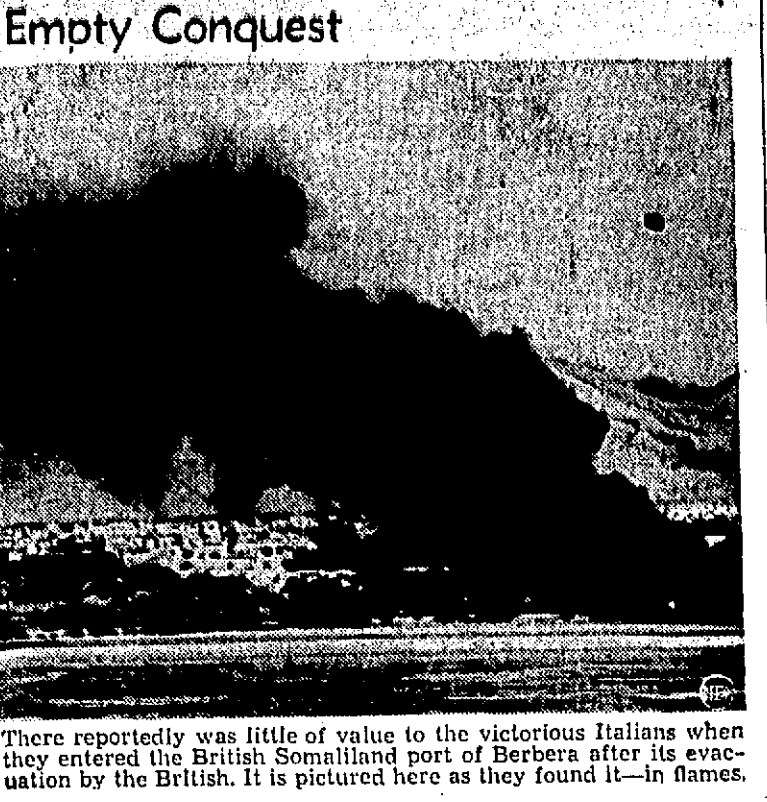

She sells you your own color personality. That's CP. She determines it by matching your skin, eyes and hair with color cards and letting you see the effects in mirrors. Her system is now used widely by others too.

Right off the bat she'll say, "You can wear your favorite color regardless of your skin and hair if you select the right tint or shade."

If your eyebrow goes up on that one, she'll probably send it higher by this: "Nobody can feel poor who sees color."

She'll tell you that only about 4 per cent of us are color blind physically, but she'll show you 50 histories that make about 50 per cent of us seem color blind mentally.

Her color business is based on charts

Andre Maurois Lands in New York Dead Broke

By JOHN SELBY
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK — It's nothing new these war days for well known and once-wealthy authors to land in America broke. Andre Maurois claims no distinction on that account, although he's gone broke twice this year. This is how it happened—

Maurois, a French army officer as well as one of the great writers of modern France, has been used many times as a go-between for his native country and England. He was in England when France fell.

"I took no money with me, because all I needed to do was ask our ambassador for it," he explained from the midst of a huge chair in a very luxurious apartment high in one of our better hotels.

"Only My Uniform"

"Then, quite suddenly, the ambassador had no money. Nor did I. And no clothes, even—only my uniform."

"So I set to work writing at once, and made $300. Then it became necessary for me to leave for America, and I could take only $10 with me. I came over with a shipload of children, and took care of one of them, and it was fun."

"But I landed in New York dead broke, as you say. Not a sou."

This was as nothing to M. Maurois, however. He went to the Plaza without hesitation.

"And because it was July, most of my friends were out of town—and anyway, one does not like to ask for money. So I ate at Childs and the Automat, and learned a great deal. I liked those places very much, because people always sat down with me, and I overheard enough to make a novel. Two novels."

Better Than in Paris

"Also I learned that one can eat adequately in New York, with good, solid food, for less than a dollar a day. If you must eat cheaply, you can live better in New York than in Paris."

But going to the Plaza seemed incongruous, until it was explained.

"It was so simple," says Maurois. "If I had gone to a hotel I could afford, they would have wanted money right away. But I had gone many times to the Plaza and I knew they would not present a bill before the end of the month. By then I had worked, and I could pay."

Harrison in Hollywood

Bob Crosby's in the Movies After Proving He Has Something Besides a Famous Name

HOLLYWOOD — Through no fault of Brother Bing, nor of Brothers Larry or Everett, young Mr. Bob Crosby is working in the movies now. And liking it.

He has a contract with 20th-Fox, has been borrowed by RKO, and is leading his band, singing songs and making love to Jean Rogers in a picture called "Let's Make Music." His work seems quite effortless; he almost never blows up in his lines; the daily rushes look fine; and there are many around the studio who wonder how the flickers so long overlooked this tall, dark and reasonably handsome member of the Crosby family.

The truth is he has had Hollywood offers before, but he really would have been overlooked if he had accepted any of them. Six years ago, when Bob was only 21 and when 31-year-old Bing or Harry Lillis had just made the first "Big Broadcast," the youngest Crosby was tempted with a contract by Paramount.

It was discovered, though, that the studio had no flattering plans for Bob; it merely wanted to take him out of circulation so no rival company could share in the zooming popularity of the Crosby name.

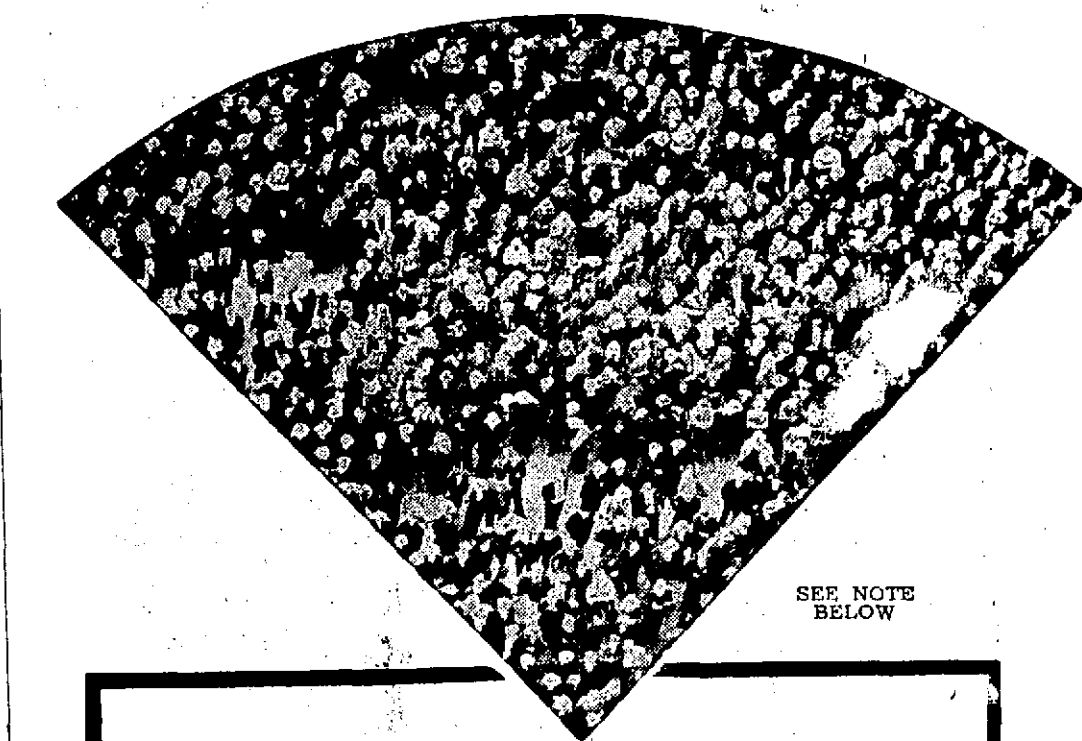

"Starring B. Crosby"

Along about the same time, a couple completions out of 14 attempts for 308 yards and five touchdowns.

In three games, Bill Murphy, regular right half, completed four of nine tosses for 70 yards. Lou Bufalino, a reserve back, made three out of eight for 49 yards and a touchdown. Bohrmann, another reserve back, completed two out of three for 60 yards and a touchdown.

Cornell has a precisely co-ordinated attack and one of the most versatile teams that ever took the field in college combat.

Amendment No. 36 discriminates against the smaller counties throughout the state!

Certainly it is unfair... but it is exactly the manner in which Amendment No. 36, if adopted, would function! Under the complicated formula which has been created for the distribution of the Pension fund, it would be distributed on a county basis, taking into consideration the amount of taxes and revenue contributed by each county and the population. In other words, the richer and more densely populated counties would get the lion's share of the money, regardless of the number of eligible persons therein! Persons in those counties eligible for pensions would get much larger payments than those of other areas—that is, until the situation became widely enough known for the migration of pensioners from the poorer to the richer counties to start. That would result in endless confusion which even the self-perpetuating commission and the lifetime pension commissioner would be unable to unsnarl! Do you see now just HOW UNFAIR Amendment No. 36 is? You CAN do something about it by voting AGAINST the amendment on November 5th.
